

RAILROADS HAVE ARMY OF WORKMEN

Over Thousand Men Are Employed to Repair Bridges and Roadbeds Within Radius of Fifty Miles.

TRAFFIC STARTS NEXT WEEK

Each Steam Road and Traction Line Expects to Operate Passenger Trains by Wednesday.

With more than a thousand men at work on the different railroads out of this city within a radius of forty miles, the enormous task of repairing the road beds damaged by the flood is progressing rapidly, and it is expected passenger service will be established on all lines by the middle of next week. All trains will not be operated, of course, until the track is more nearly completed, but each road will be able to use its own track for a considerable distance according to the predictions made today.

The B. & O. S-W. which experienced the heaviest damage expects to have trains between Aurora and Washington by Wednesday. Since the flood local trains have been operated between Vallonia and Aurora each day. West of Vallonia several bridges are out, but scores of men are at work along the division making the repairs as rapidly as possible.

A big pile driver is at work near Medora and it is predicted that this bridge will be temporarily rebuilt by the middle of the week. Other small bridges are out east of Washington but bridge gangs are at work at each place and an effort is being made to have all the bridges completed about the same time. The section men are relaying the track so that there will be no delay when the bridges are finished.

The telegraph service between Seymour and Washington is being gradually restored on the B. & O. S-W. and two through wires are now in use. The telephone wire is still down, but will be repaired at an early date.

The B. & O. S-W. will run two local passenger trains between Aurora and Vallonia Sunday. The morning train will leave Aurora at 9 o'clock and the eastbound train will return to Aurora from Vallonia at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The afternoon eastbound train will make connection at North Vernon for New Albany.

Two hundred men will start work on the tracks between Aurora and Cincinnati the first of next week, if the water continues to subside. There is considerable work along the track for several miles east of Aurora and several weeks will be required to complete it.

The Pennsylvania road established a good size town along its tracks between Rockford and Columbus. The greatest damage on this road was done north of this city where several large fills were washed out. Between seven and eight hundred men were brought from Pittsburg and other places in the East this morning, and are at work. A large pile driver was also taken to Rockford this morning. The machine was brought over the B. & O. S-W. line and the top of the big device cleared the top of the bridge at North Vernon by three inches. Louisville and Indianapolis trains will likely be operated over the main line by Tuesday.

The Southeastern Line and the I. C. & S. Traction line have a large number of men at work and it is predicted that these roads will be in shape to handle trains by the first of the week.

RAILROAD MAN DEAD.

Warren Stilwell, Well Known in This City, Passed Away at St. Louis.

Word has been received here of the death of Warren Stilwell, formerly of this county, at his home in St. Louis Thursday, March 27th. The funeral services were conducted at that place Monday, March 31st.

Mr. Stilwell was well and favorably known in this city and county. He was the son of the late James B. Stilwell, and spent his boyhood days in the vicinity of Brownstown. He was one of six brothers, five of whom selected railroad service as their vocation. He was a brother of Mrs. M. C. Whitecomb, of Cincinnati, who formerly resided here.

Mr. Stilwell removed to St. Louis when a young man and took employment with the Terminal Railroad Company at that place. By hard work and diligence he made steady advancement until he was promoted to the responsible position of manager of the Cupples Loading Station, the largest in St. Louis. He held this position for thirty-five years. He had many friends in this city.

The deceased is survived by his widow, two sons, James and Frank, and one daughter, Orlene.

FREAKS FOR THE FLOOD

Peculiar Pranks Played by the High Water in this County.

As the flood waters disappear from the bottom lands many freaks are discovered which show the force of the swift current. One of the strangest pranks played by the flood occurred near Sparksville where an almost new three room house has lodged in the trees, having been washed there from an unknown point. The house resting among the branches has created much curiosity.

A large iron boiler, twenty-four feet long and three and one-half feet in diameter, was carried from the J. B. Thompson farm, three miles east of Cortland, to a farm owned by James Crabb, located three miles west of Honeytown.

A fine bird dog, belonging to Claude Broeker, of Cortland, was given up for dead, but has been found. The last seen of the dog was during the flood when he was discovered on a board floating down the current. He was found at James Crabb's farm where he had been given good care.

J. T. Beatty lost a fine hog during the high water and later found it on the Hunsucker place five miles away. Many bridge timbers in Hamilton township floated for more than eight miles.

In some parts of the county farmers owning land in the bottoms are finding new buildings upon them while others are not able to see a shed or barn upon farms which were a few days ago improved with substantial buildings. Many of the missing buildings have been discovered and removed to the farm from which they were carried.

EXHIBIT ARRIVES FOR HEALTH WEEK

Will Be Conducted Here April 7-10 For Purpose of Promoting Improved Sanitary Conditions.

PUBLIC MEETINGS EACH NIGHT

Dr. J. N. Hurty Will Speak at Presbyterian Church Monday Evening Upon "Tuberculosis."

Health Week will be observed in Seymour next week. It will be conducted under the supervision of the Indiana state board of health for the purpose of promoting improved sanitary conditions in the home and community. Several speakers of prominence have part in the program and will give addresses upon questions which are of vital importance to the city and county. Especial interest has been shown in the meetings because of the attention given to sanitary conditions in Indiana since the recent flood.

The exhibit which will be on display at the Society Hall during the week arrived Friday afternoon and will be arranged Monday for the inspection of the public. Some of the lectures will be given at the Society Hall where the exhibit can be used to illustrate the points that the speakers desire to impress upon the audience. The high school and various grades will be given an opportunity to visit the exhibit.

The teachers throughout the county are taking much interest in the meetings and provisions will likely be made so all may have an opportunity to attend in a body. Several demonstrations will be given for the different grades, and the teachers of the several classes will be instructed regarding the best manner of presenting sanitary problems before their pupils.

Each evening during Health Week public lectures will be held at the Presbyterian church. Arrangements have been made to use moving pictures in some of the lectures.

The first public meeting will be held Monday night when Dr. J. N. Hurty, state health commissioner, will give an address upon tuberculosis. He will explain the Freidmann cure, which has attracted such widespread attention during the past few weeks. Dr. Hurty has given special study to the "white plague" and his lecture will be worth while.

Each lecture will be free and a cordial invitation is given to the public to attend. Meetings will be held morning, afternoon and night for the first four days of the week, the final meeting having been arranged for Thursday night.

It was planned to hold sessions at Crothersville and Brownstown during the week, but since the usual train service is not maintained it is not known whether these will be conducted or not. The exhibit will remain here during the week and only lectures were scheduled for the two places in order to accommodate the persons who are interested in the work and could not come here.

The program for the week is given below:

Monday.

10:00 a. m.—Lecture to High School pupils. Dr. John Owens

11:00 a. m.—High School pupils visit Exhibit

3:00 a. m.—Other schools

8:00 p. m.—Public lecture, Society Hall...Dr. W. L. King

LECTURE ON MILK

Will be Given Next Week by Dr. H. E. Barnard, of Indianapolis.

Dr. H. E. Barnard, State Pure Food Commissioner, who is connected with the Health Exhibit held here next week, will lecture in the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening at 7:30 p. m. It is desirable that every woman in the city and vicinity should hear Dr. Barnard, as he will especially dwell on the dairy and milk problem, its sanitary and insanitary conditions, problems confronting every householder using butter and milk.

Dr. Barnard will also give reasons why from a nutritional standpoint, every child should be furnished with rich clean milk, not only from infancy, but early childhood until at least six years old.

These public lectures are educational in their nature and for the purpose of informing families the reasons why they should demand milk clean and free from tuberculosis is cows, also another important fact that milk is of greater value in childhood than any other one food product.

New Loan & Trust Co.

We have created a Loan & Trust business which is and will be known as "The Seymour Loan and Trust Co." The object and purpose of said company is to negotiate loans on real estate in city and country in any amounts from $100 and upward at interest rates varying from 5 per cent upward according to the size of the loan; also to buy and sell real estate, rent property, collect rents and to do a general collecting business; attend to all legal business, notary public and abstract work; make deeds, mortgages, bonds, contracts, examine titles and correct the same.

MAIL GRADUALLY BECOMES HEAVIER

Largest Amount Received at Local Post Office From the North Since the Flood.

WHITE RIVER FALLS STEADILY

County Roads Are in Much Better Condition—Commissioners Will Consider Highways Monday.

The mail service was in better condition today than at any time since the flood which shows that the situation throughout the state is gradually improving. A small amount of mail has been received daily during the past week, but this morning an additional amount arrived from the north. Many of the letters and papers received during the week were mailed more than a week before they were received at the local office, but that received this morning shows that the mail is moving more rapidly.

Usual mail service has practically been restored on the Pennsylvania Line, although the trains are delayed and cannot make scheduled time. The mail from the north was delayed several hours Friday because of the washout on the Branch line near Elizabethtown. All Pennsylvania trains were detained over the Big Four via Greensburg. The washout has been repaired, however, and the Branch was used again today. All the trains on this line were more nearly on the schedule followed during the flood.

With the report that trains will be running over the B. & O. S-W. and the Southeastern Line by the middle of the week, comes the encouragement that mail service will continue to improve from this time. The local office had handled the incoming and outgoing mail with dispatch and has given the patrons the best possible service under the circumstances.

As a whole the flood situation shows a marked improvement during the week. The repair work is slow but the result of the long labor will be seen plainly in a few days.

The county roads are being repaired as rapidly as possible and quite a number of farmers were in the city today. The county commissioners will meet Monday to further discuss the condition of the highways and after that meeting a definite plan for rebuilding them will be followed.

The river is falling steadily at Rockford since the second rise. It is reported here this afternoon that it is rising at Medora but no serious consequences are expected. The rise there is caused by the water which filled the banks at Rockford yesterday.

THE COMIC SUPPLEMENTS.

On account of the floods the comic supplements for this issue have not arrived. Two shipments, one by freight and one by express, are on the way somewhere on different routes between St. Louis and Seymour. We regret very much to disappoint our patrons this evening, but every endeavor has been made, by telegraph, by telephone and by mail, to get at least one of the shipments here in time for use today. Subscribers will understand the situation, and that the failure to receive the comic supplements is due to causes entirely beyond our control. When they do arrive, we will be able to issue two of them in one week, and thus ultimately every subscriber will receive the full number of "funny pictures."

BUSINESS CHANGE

Fred Everback Buys Interest of H. C. Rinne in Thomas Clothing Co.

Fred Everback, a well known business man, has purchased the interest of Henry G. Rinne in the Thomas Clothing Company, and will succeed him as manager of that firm Monday. Mr. Everback has been successfully engaged in the insurance business for several years, but has disposed of that business to Harry Findley who will assume change Monday.

Mr. Everback has a wide acquaintance in Seymour and Jackson county and is well equipped to manage his new enterprise as successfully as he did the insurance business. The business will not be entirely new to him as he has had considerable experience in mercantile lines. With his wide acquaintance and up-to-date business methods he will receive an equal share of patronage.

Mr. Rinne, the retiring manager, has been connected with the Thomas Clothing Company for more than twenty-five years. He will remain with the firm for a while, until his successor is fully acquainted with all the details. He has not announced what he will do in the future.

Mrs. Mary A. Greer Dead.

Mrs. Mary A. Greer, age sixty-three years, died at 6 o'clock this morning at her home on West Fifth street after an illness of several weeks. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sexton and was born at Baker's Bridge, N. Y., July 4, 1850. In 1879 she removed to Seymour and lived here continuously since that time.

The deceased was a member of the St. Ambrose Catholic church and at all times endeavored to live in accordance with principles of Christianity and righteousness. She had a wide circle of friends who knew her as a dutiful mother and kind neighbor. She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Ernest McHaffie, of Stilesville, Mrs. John C. Wells, of Bloomington, Mrs. W. W. Wingard, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Miss Leona, of Seymour. The funeral services will be held from the Catholic church, conducted by Rev. Father C. J. Conrad, but the time has not been arranged. Burial at the Catholic cemetery.

CHAPTER XVII.

Shadows.

ON the bank, behind closed blinds, Warren Blake was working at his desk. He had been seen coming out of the bank every night for weeks. It did not cause comment. It was like Warren Blake, people thought, to be working early and late. No one who had not the key would have detected in the widened eyes and imperceptibly twitching nostrils a hint of the racking anxiety within. His pallor would have been attributed to the garish gas-light overhead. Quite deliberately he added up the column of figures before him. They spelled his crime.

Very cleverly, very characteristically, he had gone about it. Hampden, he knew, caught in the big deal into which Warren had followed him, had drifted into it—had hardly realized, as in the heat of necessity he asked the cashier to certify checks for which there were no funds, that it was a crime. Not so with Warren. In cold blood, with a nice calculation of the chances, he had stepped over the line that he had never before crossed. Once over, he had gone far. It had been a gambler's chance, the kind that many men take safely, and, when taken, had seemed all in his favor. But now the luck was running the other way. If the market sagged further, he would be done for.

No one, if told, would have believed why he had done it—because the bank was breaking anyhow under the load of worthless paper, most of it a legacy from his predecessor, and only a great deal of money could save it. It had been his pride to carry along an institution for the shakiness of which he was not responsible. It had become his life. He had risked all, even his own little carefully accumulated fortune, to save all, though he had made it a point of honor not to risk the trust properties in his keeping—he somehow made a distinction.

If the market should sag, how should he pay? Hampden, though bankrupt, would be able to work out of the hole. He could always get money somewhere. But Hampden could not, hence would not, try to save both. How then should he, Warren Blake, pay? With shame, certainly. With money—out of the question.

If the market should sag! Suddenly came to him the sure foreknowledge that it would sag. For an instant panic filled him. He put the books in their places, then began fumbling around a dusty shelf in a dark corner of the vault until his fingers found and drew forth an oblong pasteboard box. He opened it and looked at what lay within. He took it out and played with it. The gleaming, blue black thing seemed to hold a horrible fascination for him. It cost him an effort to put it away. He set the time lock, closed the vault and left.

John Dunmeade, having reached home, put his horse away in the stable. It was past 11 o'clock and he was tired. But he was not sleepy and he hated to go in out of the clear, still night. So he strolled uptown, intending to have a pipe with Haig before going to bed. His way took him past the bank just as Warren stepped out. The latter stopped.

"Working late, aren't you?" said John.

"I often do." He hesitated. "Are you out for a walk?"

"Down to Haig's. Will you go along?" John asked politely.

"A part of the way, if you don't mind. Sometimes when I've been—working hard, I like to talk to some one to forget myself. How are the primaries going?"

"The primaries? Bad. In fact, they couldn't be worse."

"I thought as much. I'm sorry. I'd like to see you win."

John was thoroughly surprised. "I supposed you were against me."

"I've always voted for you. You are fitted for public service. You have something apart from mere intellect and ability, and, far rarer, the capacity to feel what we all accept in theory but not in fact—your relation to other men. I wish I could feel—could have felt it. Whatever gave you that fine sixth sense won't let you quit. It will carry you to the end—through weakness and strength."

Something in the man's voice rather than in what he said arrested John's interest. "Do you really think that, Warren?"

"There are things that one knows." They halted, having reached the home of Silas Hicks, where Haig had his rooms. The cigar Warren had been smoking had gone out. He struck a match to relight it. He held the flaming taper before him for an instant longer than was necessary and John could see his face. It was composed but pale, the eyes extraordinarily bright.

Primary day!

From one end of the state to the other the battle raged between red rose and white. When darkness put an end to the sanguinary conflict both sides were claiming and neither side had the victory. The issue must be removed for decision to the convention.

Benton county, a Murchell strong hold, chose its complement of delegates instructed for the Hon. G. Washington Jenkins. Also it gave, as it thought, John Dunmeade his quietus.

Senator Murchell and his guest, Jenkins, received the returns at the former's home. Jeremy Applegate, too was there, not overwhelmed as he should have been by the honor, to help tabulate reports. Other politicians of the county dropped in. Once, about midnight, Jeremy answered a ring of the desk telephone, listened to the message and hung up the receiver without saying a word.

"What is it?" asked some one. "John Dunmeade's beaten," Jeremy answered shortly.

Murchell looked at the clerk. "Don't seem overjoyed, Jeremy?"

Jeremy pushed back his chair and got to his feet. He faced Murchell.

"I was thinkin'," he said quaveringly, "I was thinkin', it's a shame." The old body and the cracked, shrill voice shook with passion. "If you want to know, I voted for him. It's the only man's job I ever done since I come to be your heeler. You've beaten an broken him, the best man this county ever had, an'-an' you can have me kicked out of my job if you like."

The politicians were too amazed at this unbelievable instance of lese majeste even to laugh. Open mouthed they watched him as, quivering with defiance and the hate of the oppressed, he glared at Murchell much as in a former time he must have confronted the gray charge. They expected nothing less than that the lightnings would blast Jeremy where he stood; hence intensified stupefaction when Murchell said gravely: "Jeremy, you'd better go home. We'll talk about your job another time."

"If you want to know, I voted for him."

The old clerk turned and slowly stumped out of the room.

"Jeremy," commented the senator, "seems to have unearthed an unsuspected backbone."

The politicians, uncertain whether this was senatorial humor or not, chose silence as the course of discretion.

Later still, after the small fry had left, came the news that the opposition had freed itself and that Jerry Brent would control its convention, which meant that he would be nominated for governor. And this was matter for grave concern. Until nearly morning the leaders discussed candidates. The tenor of their conversation seemed to indicate that Wash Jenkins was not assured of the Murchell support. Nor did he seem unduly resentful because of this fact. Wash was a model retainer, humbly willing to take what he could get.

It was in the course of this discussion that Senator Murchell said, "If John Dunmeade weren't such a stubborn fool he would be just the man to meet Brent with." He spoke angrily.

The others gave respectful if surprised assent.

In the financial district of the Steel City was no June day relaxation. In the exchange was a howling, frenzied mob struggling desperately to speed advancing fortune or to retain that which was vanishing in the Alabama Iron and Coal squeeze.

A glutted by methods that would have done credit to the robber barons had raped the treasure developed by weaker brethren. And now greater barons, more gluttonous, springing upon him in an unguarded moment, by like methods were tearing the spoils from his grasp. But no one saw a joke. Before it could end two great banking houses would be bankrupt, at least one daring, arrogant speculator sensation ally ruined and a thousand little greedy ones made penniless.

The mad scramble rose to a climax. In his office the man who was the storm center stood over the ticker. He had struggled, with the unthinking valor born of desperation, against the unwavering, relentless attacks made upon him. They had forced him back, farther and still farther back to his inner lines of defense, into the last ditch. Driven out of that he had made a last vain stand. Now he awaited the slaughter. He glared fixedly at the tape in his hand.

Suddenly the fixity broke up in an insane helpless rage that demanded physical expression. From his twisted mouth came an inarticulate, wolfish cry. With a convulsive jerk he snatched off the tape—kicked the ticker until it fell with a crash. A clerk in the outer office heard the noise and rushed in. Immediately, frightened by what he saw, he withdrew, closing the door behind him.

Stephen Hampden was not good to look upon as he rushed up and down the room, striking and kicking at the objects in his way. His face was purple—convulsed. He poured out unintelligible imprecations on the "curs," the "crooks," the "traitors" who had broken him. He had no thought for those upon whom he in his turn had fallen. He was obsessed by the passion of his defeat.

The paroxysm spent itself. He flung himself, panting and still glaring, into a chair. The telephone rang. He paid no attention to it.

The clerk, trembling, opened the door. "You're wanted on the long distance, Mr. Hampden. It's—"

"I won't talk to them!" Hampden snarled back.

The clerk withdrew, then reappeared. "Beg pardon, Mr. Hampden. He insisted timidly, 'But it's Mr. Blake of New Chelsea. He says he must talk to you.'"

"All right." Hampden caught up the telephone. He waited until the click told him that the clerk's receiver had been hung up, then snapped: "This is Hampden. What do you want?"

The precaution was unnecessary. The message was strangely worded. It would have meant nothing to an outsider. But Hampden had the key.

He hung up the receiver. And for a moment he allowed himself to be beaten down. Fear before a danger incurred in the heat of battle and now become imminent, terrible, through the folly of another, ousted rage. Mere defeat, bankruptcy, paled before this new penalty which he must pay. And fear steadied him, cleared his brain. He wasted no time in futile regrets. His mind darted hither and thither, swift and calculating, pondering and rejecting a hundred avenues of escape from the peril which must be averted before he could set out to recoup his losses. There was no thought of saving Warren Blake—only himself.

Late in the day he went out—to beg the mercy he had never shown.

Katherine Hampden was alone that evening. She was often alone now days, but not entirely because, as she had told John Dunmeade, she had been assigned a berth on the shelf reserved for unmarried females. There were many men who would have gladly undertaken to relieve her solitude. But these found her extremely unapproachable. Those whom she would have welcomed most gladly had least time for dalliance in drawing rooms.

The truth was, she was disappointed. Mature perception, quickened by a glimpse of a different ideal of life, had seen beyond the false setting of romance behind which men seek to hide the ugliness of the greedy, unscrupulous scramble for gold. She would have married Gregg had it not been for the fact that the acid of his calling was etching more and more clearly upon his frank, clean exterior a picture of what lay within. As it was, she had sent him away.

She was waiting for her father's homecoming. While she waited she glanced through the evening paper. In it the day's doings on the stock exchange were featured. The account had it that Hampden had been hard hit—even vaguely hinted that he might have to fail. She was amazed at the lack of emotion with which she read that their fortune, hitherto so potent and all sufficing, had in a day been sadly shaken if not totally destroyed. She tried to picture to herself what it must mean to them—the economies, the privations even, the loss of caste among a set that measured worth by stocks and bonds. Somehow the picture could not profoundly alarm, partly perhaps because she knew too little of want to draw convincingly. She could not even feel deeply for her father, although she had for him a genuine daughter's affection and knew what a blow failure would be to him.

"Poor father!" she smiled half pityingly. "I suppose nothing can persuade him that it isn't a horrible calamity. I ought to feel so, too, but—Heigho! Is this Katherine Hampden?"

She went on turning the pages of the paper until her casual glance was caught by a familiar name in a satirical editorial under the caption "A Fool Errant." The fool errant was John Dunmeade, recently—and happily, in the editor's opinion—disposed of at the primaries.

Her color deepened suddenly and for another reason. Memory had recalled to her something she had once said to this man. "When you were a broken down, middle aged failure. . . . I should be looking up at the men who were conquering. . . . And I should regret."

Well, her prophecy had been fulfilled sooner than she had expected. He had been cast aside even by his own neighbors. But there was something large and fine about him which forbade pity and commanded respect, made even such men as Gregg, with their vitiated ideals, want to do him favors "on general principles."

"To think that I could have said that to him!" she cried to herself. "What a cad I was! If only I hadn't said 'Up at the men who were conquering' John Dunmeade, you tower above them all."

She was still dreaming of John when her father came in.

His face was haggard, set in an ugly, bitter scowl. The sympathy that had lagged as she read of the wiping out of a fortune leaped when she saw the man who had lost it.

"Cleaned out," he said curtly. She went to him quickly, laying an impulsive hand on his shoulder. "Oh, well, dear, never mind. It might be so much worse. You might have been taken sick or had an accident, or—or anything. I've just been thinking how nice it would be to go back home to New Chelsea and start all over again in—something that wouldn't take all your time. I—I'd be so glad to get acquainted with you again." She gave a little laugh.

"You talk like a fool!" he replied roughly. "What could I do in that rube town—run a grocery store? Here's where I can make money. And I can make all we need, once I get things straightened out. I've been broke before. The immediate question is to keep out of jail."

She started back from him with a gasp. "Out—of—jail! Father!"

"Out of jail, I said. I'm 'into' the New Chelsea bank and I've nothing left to pay with."

"Is—is it much?"

"It wasn't, but it is now."

"But we must pay it back. There are the bonds you gave me. And the New Chelsea houses that mother owns—she'll give those up. And—"

"Not a third enough."

She dropped weakly into a chair, staring at him foolishly. She was very pale, dazed by the sudden new calamity that had fallen.

"But surely," she insisted anxiously, "the bank won't press you. They know you'll pay it all back when you can."

"What do you know about it? It isn't the bank; it's the government that will make the trouble. That fool Blake is in worse than I am. The bank's gutted, cleaned out. And the bank examiner is overdue. If he comes around now—"

With a gesture he sketched the impending catastrophe.

"Stephen, what is the matter now?" came a languid voice from the doorway. "And please, for my sake, lower your voice. It's so vulgar to talk loudly before servants." Mrs. Hampden entered and, with an air of utter exhaustion, deposited her substantial self in an easy chair.

"Father," Katherine explained, with cruel brevity, "has lost his money."

It was an unexpected tonic. The invalid suddenly sat bolt upright and almost shrieked. "Lost our money? Do you mean to say, Stephen Hampden, that you've been selfish enough to gamble our money away after all I've suffered and denied myself?"

She threw her hands aloft and fell back moaning. "Oh, in my weak condition, when my heart—"

"Maria, you're a fraud. Even with your laziness and indulgences you're the picture of vulgar health."

Mrs. Hampden rose. She managed a stagger that would have done credit to Bernhardt, clutching at tables and chairs for the doubtfully necessary support out of the room.

Hampden growled again, unintelligibly.

"Father, isn't there something to be done?"

"Murchell. I've an appointment with him in New Chelsea tomorrow. Some of his rascally politicians are in as deep as Blake and I."

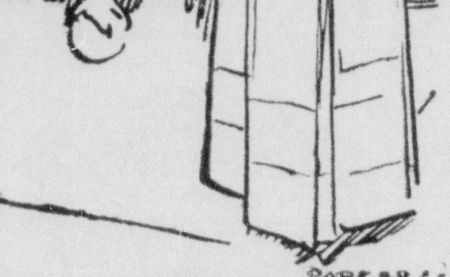

"Can he help?"

"He can. And he's got to."

"Do you mind if I go up with you tomorrow?"

"All right. And I wish," he exclaimed querulously, "you'd go away and let me alone."

In her darkened room Katherine sat by the window for a long time, thinking with a feeling of sickening disgust on the sordid scene between her parents just enacted. This was the other side, the unlamented side, of that splendid life of conquest for which she had put the best of all aside. Thus it made victims of its votaries. She thought of John.

PROTECT YOUR FAMILY

If you buy your land through my office in Benkelman, it means "INDEPENDENCE" to YOU in LIFE, and INDEPENDENCE to YOUR FAMILY at your death. I will enter into a contract and endorse right on your Mortgage that if you die before you get your land paid for, that all indebtedness is canceled and your family gets clear title to your land, thereby putting them in good circumstances. I know just how a man feels about going into debt and worrying about leaving his family in debt should anything happen to him.

These worries are things I am striving to alleviate for my patrons, and under my plan you have no such worries. Buy of me such a place as you want, pay what you can and make the balance up in yearly payments. If you live you know you can handle it, you know you can make your payments. Should you die, the Mortgage reads right on the face of it, that it is "PAID IN FULL" and your family starts off free from debt.

Moral: "Buy land of Matteson of Benkelman." He always stands by you. Come, look over my lands, pick on a place for yourself and become a booster for this great land of opportunity, where you are independent through life, and your family is independent after your death. My new list and map sent free upon request.

"Dame Fortune does not tease men to shake her jeweled hand, nor does opportunity entreat her acceptance."

MELANCHOLY WOMEN

Should Profit by Mrs. Hurley's Experience—Her Own Story Here Told.

Eldon, Mo.—"I was troubled with displacement, organic inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased once a month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world.

"After I had tried most every female remedy first, without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

Theme:

NECESSITY OF IDEALS.

BY REV. GEORGE DOWNING SPARKS.

Text—I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills.—Psalm, cxxi., 1.

It was no haphazard chance, but the yielding to a natural instinct, that men in early times offered up their sacrifices on the tops of mountains. God seemed to be nearer on a lofty peak than in the valley below. Heaven appeared to touch the earth when the clouds kissed the hilltops. This was the thought that stirred the heart of primitive man; and to-day, I imagine, the majority of us can think of God more easily when we gaze from some towering elevation into "the silence of the starry sky" and feel, almost as a divine Presence, "the sleep among the lonely hills."

It is absolutely necessary for us to have ideals. If we have none, then we will sink to the level of the beasts of the field. We will go through life as dumb driven cattle, and not as heroes with the light of God shining in our faces. If we wish worthily to achieve our destiny, then there must ever be before us "the vision splendid." Our religion, as the highest of ideals, beckons us upward and bids us go forward and practice what we believe in daily life and duty.

If it be true that most men "chatter and love and hate, gather and squander, are raised aloft, are hurried in the dust, striving blindly, achieving nothing," then let it not be true of us. We can, if we will, cherish some splendid ideal of character and service. Many men have done this. History glitters with their names. Why cannot we do likewise?

Let us therefore determine to be "souls temper'd with fire," and refuse to look upon life as something mean and contemptible. It is good, notwithstanding what cowards and croakers say to the contrary. It is always our own fault if we let it be barren and fruitless.

"Look up," then, must be our motto, not "look down." Look at the things which make for righteousness and peace, not at the things which produce sin and discord. Keep our eyes on the things that are true, honest, pure and of good report. So gazing, our eyes will be effectually turned away from things false, impure and low.

We shall have opportunities every day, almost every hour, of showing our philosophy of life. It depends entirely upon ourselves in what direction we will direct our gaze: toward those things which will lift us up or drag us down; toward the snow-capped mountain peaks, glittering in the sunlight, or to the dark, foul, fever haunted swamps of the valley.

Bunyan, in his "Pilgrim's Progress," sees a man with a muck rake. Over his head hovers an angel proffering him a celestial crown for that which he holds in his hands. But the man will not look up and continues to rake together the sticks and straws on the floor. It is a true picture, grim in its reality, of a man with no ideals, the saddest kind of a human tragedy.

"It Doth Not Yet Appear."

The Bible is our only source of information concerning the future life. Almost everyone has, at some time in life, earnestly wished to know more about Heaven than the Bible has revealed. But we are not sure that a fuller and clearer revelation would serve any good purpose. Perhaps it would render men discontented with their present lot and unfit for present duty.

Perhaps there is no power in human language to convey to men's minds a fuller and clearer idea of the heavenly world. It may be that in our present state we do not possess the capacity to comprehend these things even if they could be uttered in human speech. Whatever be the reason for the comparative obscurity in which this interesting subject has been left, it is enough for us to know that there is a holy city where the saints of God are being gathered home to be forever with the Lord. We are invited to enter through the gates into that city, and the few faint glimpses of that heavenly place are enough to win our hearts to a holy life, and to cheer us on our journey through this vale of tears.—Christian Advocate.

Go Tell Thy Father.

Whatever it is that presses thee, go, tell thy Father, put over the matter into His hand, and so thou shalt be freed from that dividing, perplexing care that the world is full of. When thou art either to do or suffer anything, when thou art about any purpose or business, go tell God of it, and acquaint him with it; yea, burden him with it, and thou hast done for matter of caring; no more care, but quiet, sweet diligence in thy duty, and dependence on him for the carriage of thy matters. Roll thy cares, and thyself with them, as one burden, all on thy God.—R. Leighton.

Through the resurrection of Christ the believer has victory; not only over sin and the law, but thanks be to God over death and the grave.—C. J. Felt.

ALL IS BUSINESS AT THE PITS

A GLIMPSE OF THE PITS, INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY

While the eyes of the public are naturally turned upon the drivers who will participate in the third annual 500-mile International Sweepstakes race which will be held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30, there are other men who have their share of the work to do and upon whom the driver is largely dependent for his success. These are "the men at the pits," those expert workmen, who are able to make the most complicated repairs on a car in a miraculously short time. Every car must have its pit-men, and these men must work with the speed of lightning and the precision of machinery. When a car is compelled to come to the pits for repairs or tire changes, seconds are precious, and every man must know exactly what to do and when to do it. For the spectators, this pit work is as interesting and as exciting as the contest itself, and this year arrangements have been made so that the public will be able to enjoy this part of the performance to the fullest extent.

Jules Guyot and Paul Zuccarrelli, the Frenchmen who will compose the Peugeot team will be accompanied to this country by a large force of mechanics and repair men, who have secured their training in the Peugeot factory in Paris. So vitally important do the foreigners consider their pit work, that these men are kept in constant practice, and even when they are not engaged in racing they are forced to have "pit drill" almost daily.

Albert Guyot, the driver of the English Sunbeam car, is also a Frenchman, but his working force will be composed of men from the Sunbeam factory, which is located at Wolverhampton, England. They are a cosmopolitan lot, among them being a German, two Italians, an Irishman, two Frenchmen and several Englishmen.

BURMAN IN RACE

"SPEED KING" FINDS CAR THAT SUITS HIS FANCY.

Will Undergo Thorough Training Course That He May Drive Entire 500 Miles Himself.

That Bob Burman, the Speed King, will drive a Keeton car in the third annual 500-mile International Sweepstakes Race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30, is now an assured fact, formal entry of the car having been made by the Keeton Manufacturing Company, of Detroit, Michigan. This signifies the entry of the Keeton Company into automobile racing, in which Forrest M. Keeton, president of the company, is a firm believer. Keeton was in charge of the racing interests of the Pope Manufacturing Company in the earliest days of the Vanderbilt race, when Herbert Lytle and Bert Dingley were the stars of the team.

After superintending the construction of his car at the Keeton factory, Burman will begin his training at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, for he believes that in no other way could he fit himself for the contest of which he hopes to be one of the winners.

Burman selected the Keeton car during his visit to the New York Automobile show, where he went from California with the avowed purpose of selecting a car suitable for a gruelling contest such as the Indianapolis 500-mile race always proves. He is convinced that the Keeton is just the car to make an excellent showing in the long distance event. Burman's fame as a driver has spread far and wide and the fact that he will again be seen on the Indianapolis Speedway is filling the hearts of motor enthusiasts with joy.

Burman has determined to drive the entire 500 miles of the race by himself, if such a thing is possible, and with that end in view he will undergo a thorough course of training at the hands of a competent physical director. Believing that the physical strain upon a race driver is equal to that of the man who is called upon to display his prowess in the prize ring, the football field or the baseball diamond, Burman will maintain training hours, will regulate his meals so as to prepare his stomach and will endeavor to be in tip-top physical condition by May 30.

TO BE ON STUTZ TEAM

DON HERR.

A new member of the Stutz racing team is Don Herr, a young driver who has heretofore been seen in many events at the wheel of a National. He began his career as a car tester and drove racing cars incidental to his other duties. He was the winner of the Illinois trophy race at Elgin three years ago, averaging 65.6 miles an hour. He is a daring driver, but he has reduced his method to an exact science, and it is expected that he will give a good account of himself when he appears at the wheel of his Stutz car in the third annual five-hundred-mile International Sweepstakes Race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway May 30.

NOW CAR MANUFACTURER

FRANK P. FOX.

Frank P. Fox, oil operator, accessory dealer and former race driver, will this year enter the racing game from another angle. Fox is known throughout the country as one of the best drivers who ever faced a starter's gun, but now he comes before the public as a car owner and manufacturer. He has entered the Fox Special, a car manufactured by himself, in the third annual 500-mile International Sweepstakes Race, which will be held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30. Fox has the distinction of being the man selected by Detective William Burns to drive the car in which John B. McNamara was taken away from Indianapolis after his arrest for complicity in the famous dynamite case. Fox will not drive his own car in the 500-mile race, having nominated Howard Wilcox for that position, but he will be on the job nevertheless, and the car which is being built entirely in accordance with his ideas, will embody much of the experience he gained in handling speed chariots.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SOMETHING YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO MISS

The lovely Josephine St. Auban is the heroine of romantic adventures in the picturesque days that were the pioneer days in the middle west before the civil war.

Warville Dunwoody is a stalwart American, competent and ready to press suit for a beautiful woman's hand in the masterful manner that wins.

But there are risks—grave risks—attending the achievement of his absorbing ambition, thrilling to experience and thrilling to read about.

The story of the adventures of these two interesting people and of their associates is one that will make the hours fly quickly. It is told in "The Purchase Price," the new novel by Emerson Hough, which will shortly appear in serial form in this paper.

Why He Was Late

"What made you so late?"
"I met Smithson."
"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."
"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."
"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"
"Sure, that is what he needs." Sold by all dealers.

HOUGH AN AUTHORITY ON WESTERN LIFE

Emerson Hough, whose new novel, "The Purchase Price," will be run in this paper as a serial, has made an enviable reputation as a writer on western themes. It may be said truthfully of him that he has slept out of doors more, traveled more after big game and seen more of the actual life of the open than any other writer over before the American public.

From his earliest years he felt the call of the west, and as soon as he could he went thither and, as he whimsically expresses it, "has been going ever since," for never a year passes without a trip into some wild country in search of big and dangerous game.

You will look a good while before you find a better medicine for coughs and colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Try it when you have a cough or cold, and you are certain to be pleased with the prompt cure which it will effect. For sale by all dealers.

THIS TOO WILL PASS.
The story is told of an old Persian monarch, who had a very fickle disposition. One day he was bubbling over with enthusiasm and joy and the next day he was in the slough of despond. He recognized his weakness and finally offered a large reward to the person in his kingdom, who would find a satisfactory cure. Many of the prices and nobles suggested plans of treatment, but none of them met the king's approval. One day his daughter presented him with a signet ring on which was engraved this motto, "This too will pass." The motto appealed to the king at once and he accepted it as the remedy for his difficulties. In his enthusiastic moments a glance at the motto recalled him to his sober judgment and helped him to avoid extravagances into which he would have been led. In his times of despondency the motto recalled to him that this condition was only temporary and that in time affairs would adjust themselves again.
We do not know whether this story is based on fact or fiction, but in either case the motto seems especially appropriate in the flood stricken districts. After the first force of the losses has been felt there comes a disposition to let go and feel what is the use of undertaking to regain the losses, but as American people we are not given generally to despondent moods for very long at a time. We recognize that the flood conditions, like all other adverse conditions, are only temporary and while the effects will be felt for weeks and months to come in every line of business and enterprise, that these conditions can be and must be overcome. Like the citizens of Chicago, and San Francisco, and Charleston, and Galveston, when tremendous catastrophes came upon them, the true American spirit is manifesting itself. Those cities suffered losses from fire and earthquake and tidal wave, greatly in excess of those which the river floods have brought, yet they rose to the emergency and on the ruins of their private and public fortunes built larger and better than before.
In communication with the outlying parts of Jackson county and in fact with similar reports from other counties, there is manifested everywhere the disposition on the part of the flood sufferers to make the best of their situation, to retrieve their losses as quickly as possible and to do so as far as possible without calling for outside help. This is a worthy spirit and yet people all over our country are volunteering and sending in their sympathy and material assistance, so liberally that there need be no cases of real want that shall not be met.
Seymour has been very fortunate in escaping any direct damages from the floods as the entire town is above any high water that has ever been witnessed or that is likely to be witnessed in this county. In fact, if Seymour were flooded there would be only a few knobs projecting above the water all over Jackson county. Our immediate loss has been trivial but we suffer indirectly as the country which is tributary to our city suffers and as the various parts of our state with which we are closely related in business have suffered. But in the temporary business depression which the flood has brought through stopping the natural channels of trade, it is well to remember that the depression need be only temporary. It should be a challenge to all of us as it has been to those in the flooded districts, to build broader and stronger than ever before our business relations with our trade territory. In thinking of the disaster let us remember the motto of the old Persian king that "This too will pass."

OH, SPLASH
33,484,800,000 Tons of Water Pass Under Louisville Bridge.
Louisville, April 5.—Before the last of the flood water which fell over the Ohio valley above Louisville, March 24-27, has passed under the bridges here, 33,484,800,000 tons will have rolled by, according to the calculations of F. J. Walz, professor of meteorology, at the local weather bureau. This is enough to fill with water a tank 87 1-5 miles long, ten miles wide and fifty feet in depth. These figures are based on reports showing that the average rainfall above here was six inches, though at least double that probably fell in some Ohio and Indiana localities. To explain what this amount of rain means in quantitative measurement, Mr. Walz has compiled the following statistics:
"An inch of rain means 27,154 gallons of water to the acre, or 17,378,740 gallons to the square mile. Then six inches, the average amount that fell over the Ohio river drainage area, equals about 104,225,000 gallons to the square mile.
"The drainage area of the Ohio river above Louisville is 87,200 square miles. Therefore, six inches of rain over this area means 9,090,600,000,000 gallons of water. This would fill a tank 872 square miles in area and fifty feet deep. The area of Lake Ontario is 6,700 square miles.
"The weight of one inch of water over an acre is about one hundred tons; over a square mile 64,000 tons. Therefore the weight of this great volume of the water, represented by six inches of rain over the drainage area above Louisville, means 33,484,800,000 tons."

Read What James J. Hill Says About Women Shoppers.
Every woman tries to get the best value for her money. That is natural and proper, but the indiscriminate hunt for bargains spells trouble.
"The tendency of the average woman," said James J. Hill, "is to buy everything as cheaply as possible. That is the worst kind of economy. It is difficult to convince a housewife of this fact; but when she once realizes it she is on the true road to making money. The same principle that governs a railway in buying steel rails ought to govern the housewife in her purchase of beefsteak—not how cheap, but how good."
"Not how cheap but how good for the price." Read the advertisements of the merchants who advertise in THE REPUBLICAN with that in mind and your purchases will give every satisfaction.
The best is the cheapest.

PARDON FOR HINSHAW
Claimed That Murderer is in Ill Health and Should Go West.
Following a conference between Governor Ralston and A. D. Thomas, of Crawfordsville, president of the state board of pardons and paroles, Governor Ralston let it be known that the state board, in special session at the statehouse, considered the parole of the Rev. William E. Hinshaw. He was convicted of murder, following the alleged brutal murder of his wife near the little town of Belleville, five miles south of Danville, at 1 o'clock on the night of January 10, 1895.
Members of the state board refused to discuss the case. They remained in session throughout the forenoon and the only visitor before the board, as far as known, was E. J. Fogarty, warden of the state prison at Michigan city. Mr. Fogarty also refused to discuss the case.
The board decided to continue the request of a pardon or parole for Hinshaw until the June meeting, although it is said the official record of the proceedings of the board at its recent meeting, which went to the Governor today, will not include the proceedings in the Hinshaw case.
Hinshaw's ill health and what is believed to be an immediate necessity for taking him to the west to recover, if possible, from a valvular heart trouble, if his life is to be saved are said to be the reasons his release has been asked from the board.
Hinshaw was paroled during the closing days of the term of Winfield T. Durbin as Governor, the parole being signed January 10, 1905. He went from prison to his old home at Winchester and visited his friends in Hendricks county. It later developed that he began correspondence with a Wabash woman, and they were found in a hotel together at Shirley. He was again arrested and after denying the story, finally admitted it to be true. On November 10, 1906, he was again sent back to his cell by Governor Hanly. Another attempt was made to obtain his release during the term of Governor Marshall, but it was unsuccessful.
Hinshaw was sent first to the Jeffersonville reformatory and was transferred to the state prison April 3, 1897.
The residents of Belleville heard a shot late in the night, followed by cries for help. Neighbors found Hinshaw in his night clothes lying on the street, seemingly writhing in agony. Blood from a dozen cuts and two bullet wounds in his body reddened the surrounding snow.
An investigation showed Mrs. Hinshaw lying on the back steps of the home, close to the kitchen door, dressed in her night clothes and dying of a bullet wound in the head. Hinshaw told a story of having been attacked by burglars, who shot his wife in the head, and when he arose to grapple with them, shot him twice and slashed him with a razor.
Harry C. Webster, a detective, and John Oyler, of Winchester, father of the murdered woman, did not believe the story. Webster began an investigation, and on February 1, 1895, Hinshaw was arrested on an affidavit sworn out by Webster, charging him with the crime. On May 24, 1895, the grand jury returned an indictment against Hinshaw and he was convicted in the Hendricks circuit court.

New Statesmen to Direct Extra Session's Work

Only Three Men in the House Now Who Were in That Body When Democrats Were Last in Control of Government in 1893—Five Present Democratic Senators Then in House.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

The men who are legislating for and otherwise managing the affairs of the nation are new to responsibility. They have been in the minority all their political lives so far as national affairs are concerned.

In the house of representatives there are three men who were members when the Democrats were last in control of the government. They are Speaker Champ Clark, Jones of Virginia and Talbot of Maryland. In the senate there is no Democrat left who was a member of that body under the last Democratic administration; consequently the men in charge are new to national power.

There are five Democratic senators who were members of the house twenty years ago. They are Bankhead of Alabama, Smith of Arizona, Williams of Mississippi, Newlands of Nevada and Swanson of Virginia. As these men as well as the three still left in the house were new in congress twenty years ago, they took very little part in the momentous session when the silver purchase act was repealed and the Wilson tariff law was passed.

New Men at the Helm.

With the exception of Champ Clark there are new men at the helm in the house. The leader of the Democracy on the floor is Oscar W. Underwood, who has developed into presidential size since the last Democratic tariff law was passed. He has a corps of comparatively young and almost new lieutenants on the ways and means committee, among them being Francis Burton Harrison of New York, Shackelford of Missouri, Kitchin of North Carolina, Hammond of Minnesota, Peters of Massachusetts, Palmer of Pennsylvania, Ansberry of Ohio, Garner of Texas, Stanley of Kentucky, Rainey of Illinois and Dixon of Indiana. These men and their associates have drafted the tariff which will soon start on its tempestuous journey through congress.

Among other Democrats who have come to the front in the lapse of years between the last Democratic administration and the present and who will have much to say in shaping legislation are Fitzgerald, Goldfogle and George of New York; Kinkead, Hamill and McCoy of New Jersey; Clayton and Hobson of Alabama; Oldfield and Floyd of Arkansas; Baker of California; Taylor of Colorado; Sparkman and Clark of Florida; Adamson, Hardwick and Crisp of Georgia; Buchanan, Sabath and Graham of Illinois; Cullup, Moss, Adair and Barnhart of Indiana; Sherley of Kentucky; Brunsard and Estopinal of Louisiana; McGillivuddy of Maine; Lewis of Maryland; Sisson and Humphreys of Mississippi; Rucker, Lloyd, Hensley and Borland of Missouri; Small, Pou, Page and Webb of North Carolina; Sharpe and Ashbrooke of Ohio; Ferris and Carter of Oklahoma; Johnson and Lever of South Carolina; Moon, Padgett, Sims and Garrett of Tennessee; Beall, Henry, Slayden and Smith of Texas; and Jones, Saunders, Glass, Hay and Flood of Virginia.

Many others may come to the front in the Sixty-third congress, but the important point is that all these men named were not even considered possibilities when Grover Cleveland was inaugurated. They are only a few of that vast army of 2,000 congressmen who have marched on the field of national politics in the past twenty years. They belong to the new generation in politics, and they and their associates are in charge of the house of representatives in this extra session called by President Wilson.

Senate Shows a Change.

While a man who links the last with the present Democratic administration is at the head of the house of representatives, the senate has not only changed, but younger men are in charge. The new element has gone so far as to push that hoary old seniority rule into the background and given new men an opportunity to become leaders. A man who was unknown in politics twenty years ago has been made chairman of the caucus and leader, and another of the same type becomes president pro tempore of the senate. In the past those positions were accorded to "elder statesmen" by the party in control.

And so we see the senate in charge of Kern of Indiana as leader and Clarke of Arkansas presiding when the vice president is absent, while the men who are conducting affairs are O'Gorman of New York, Gore and Owen of Oklahoma, Stone of Missouri, Smith of Georgia, Lea of Tennessee, Smith of South Carolina, Chamberlain of Oregon, Shively of Indiana, Pomeroy of Ohio and others of such recent appearance in national politics as to make them almost unknowns. They are smashing some senate traditions.

© 1913 BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

These men may not actually dominate the senate for the reason that this body has become unmanageable by any small coterie. Besides, the fact that they have climbed into power at the beginning of the administration has already engendered an ill feeling which may make it difficult to hold their positions permanently and which may also make Democratic legislation difficult.

The Old Order Passeth.

What a difference is noted now as compared with twenty years ago! Then the old timers on the Democratic side of the senate stepped into control Gorman, Ransom, Harris, Voorhees, McPherson, Vest, Jones, Cockrell, Morgan, Daniel, Butler, George and a few others who had grown old in service stepped in and took their places, as had been the custom in years past, and managed the senate. Of course there developed a certain amount of opposition and ill feeling, but the tradition of seniority could not be broken. Even now it has not been entirely broken. Seniority controlled in the makeup of the committees.

As to the Republican side, there is a great change, but the old order still prevails. More than that, there is every indication of a "get together" policy on the part of the Republicans. Progressives have been treated like regulars. It marks a beginning, and it may mean a solid front on party matters before the session is very old. Still there is an absence of the Aldrich and Hale control. In their places are Gallinger, Lodge and Smoot, the latter the more active and energetic, but still the difference is so striking as to be remarkable.

East and West Combinations.

Combinations of western Democrats and another of eastern Democrats have been formed with a view of standing together for the interests they represent. Such combinations are of the "log rolling" character which have been condemned in times past. Usually the "log rolling" is for the purpose of getting something out of congress in the way of appropriations. The new combinations are believed to be for the purpose of preventing too radical cuts in the tariff on the products and industries of the states represented.

These combinations will fail, as all such have failed before. As soon as they become extensive enough to be powerful their interests are no longer common, but often diametrically opposed. The great grain producing region of the Mississippi valley is not interested in protecting the minerals of the Rocky mountains or the fruits of California. It has also been found that the eastern combination wants free raw materials and free agricultural products from Canada, which is just what the western men do not want.

Whipping Them Into Line.

President Wilson has been advised to hold back patronage for the purpose of "whipping into line" those Democrats who show a disposition to oppose the plans the leaders prepare. That is what Mr. Taft tried to do. His trouble was that certain Republicans wanted lower duties than the leaders would grant. The present trouble is that certain Democrats do not want as low duties as the leaders propose.

But patronage threats did not keep many Republicans from "insubring," with the result that the greatest split the Republican party ever knew occurred. However, it was a more popular thing for the low tariff Republicans to become insurgent than it will be for the high tariff Democrats to break away from their party. Still there are quite a number of Democrats who say they will not consent to see the industries of their section injured by radical cuts in the tariff.

Power of the President.

But if the president really goes into this matter he will be very powerful. Every president is a power in his party, and the patronage club is generally effective. But what is most important is the fact that the people believe the president is right and stand by him rather than by the man they have elected to congress. Twenty years ago President Cleveland exhausted his patronage in causing the repeal of the silver purchase act and had none to use on the senate to prevent the Gormanizing of the Wilson tariff bill. The result was disastrous to the party.

President McKinley knew the congressional game and was skillful in the use of patronage. President Roosevelt relied both on patronage and the effect of public opinion to coerce congress. President Taft failed in the use of patronage, and public opinion sided with his opponents.

President Wilson is in a position to use both patronage and public opinion to gain such legislation as he desires to have passed.

SERIOUS CHARGES

Moral Conduct of Western Senator Under Investigation.

Washington, April 5.—Charges involving the moral conduct of a Democratic senator from a western state have been presented to United States Attorney Wilson here, who is investigating them. A man seeking federal office charges that when his wife went to the senator in his behalf the senator acted in an improper manner and later repeated this action when he called on the woman at a hotel, where the husband says he posted witnesses.

The senator declares the charges are blackmail and part of a plot to ruin him politically. He says that the witnesses against him are persons who have been or represent his political enemies in his own state.

The affair charged against the senator is alleged to have happened a week ago. No attempt to keep it quiet was made either by the woman concerned, her husband or the witnesses, but no official steps were taken at that time. Later the parties said they intended to drop the affair, but finally decided to get the advice of a lawyer. The charges were then brought to the attention of the United States attorney.

Mr. Wilson, the United States attorney, will not confirm a report that he has presented the witnesses to the grand jury. A grand jury would have no jurisdiction over a senator after the congress goes into session next Monday. The name of the senator is withheld by the authorities, as the case is being investigated.

PAROLES FOR FIVE

Eighteen Cases Denied by Board—Governor May Act in Two.

Two inmates of Indiana's penal institutions, charged with minor offenses, may be pardoned by Governor Ralston on recommendations from the state board of pardons, which has completed the work of its March session and filed its report with the Governor. One of those for whom a pardon is recommended is a woman, the first to gain clemency from the board for a number of sessions.

The two are Walter Parish, sentenced to the Indiana reformatory from Bartholomew county, September 10, 1909, for one to eight years, for petit larceny, and Vita Crabb, sentenced from Floyd county, October 23, 1911, for two to fourteen years for forgery, to the Indiana Women's prison.

Five inmates of penal institutions are to be paroled if the state board's recommendations carry weight with the Governor.

Eighteen cases were denied by the board; fifteen whose cases had been pending before the board, have been paroled by the parole boards at the various institutions; three whose cases had been pending, had been previously pardoned by the Governor; one petitioner had died before his case could be heard; one had become insane, and one case was dismissed at the request of the attorney in the case. Seventy cases were continued by the board.

Those whose paroles were recommended follow:

Dello Welty, Vanderburg county, June 30, 1911, one to fourteen years, grand larceny. Reformatory.

Alexander Huey, Fountain county, October 26, 1907, ten to twenty years, burglary, to state prison.

Charles Morgan, Boone county, January 16, 1905, two to fourteen years; assault and battery with intent to rob, to state prison.

Clare Swallow, Vigo county, May 20, 1907, one to eight years; petit larceny, Indiana reformatory.

Charles H. Green, Laporte county, December term, 1909, two to twenty years, for the crime of incest. State prison.

SMALL LAKES INSIDE LEVEE

Conditions at Evansville Are Unprecedented.

RESIDENCE SECTION FLOODED

Portions of the City That Never Before Have Been Affected by Usual Spring Rise of Stream Now Are Encompassed by Water Pouring in Over Levees and Converting Those Sections into a Veritable Lake.

Evansville, Ind., April 5.—The river is stationary, says the weather bureau. Water street is covered. It resembles a lake, lapping the curbstones of pavements adjoining business houses. Splash boards keep the waves off the sidewalks. Boats are anchored so near the walks it is possible to toss a paper to them. No flood ever held Evansville more completely in its grip. The record belongs to 1913, against 1884 when the stage came short of forty-eight feet.

High winds have done great damage. The waves are eating out the heart of the boulevard levee. Seep water and the overflowing of sewers are making small lakes inside the levee.

The Parrett street district, protected by bulkheaded sewers, is still outside the range of the water, but the waves ceaselessly pounding against the sewer tops and dashing across the top of the levee are threatening that district. The Linwood avenue territory, in one of the newer residence sections, is flooded to the river's level. Boats are in use there. Hundreds of acres are flooded in that section.

The Howell levee broke, flooding a thousand acres between Evansville and Howell and making a Venice of 800 homes between Evansville and Howell, the Ingleside suburb. Conditions in the district around the mouth of the Wabash are indescribable. Thousands of men, women and children are dependent on immediate action. W. G. Archer, commanding a federal relief boat out of Evansville to Uniontown, Ky., telephoned that the conditions there were beyond description. The women and children had no shelter except that afforded by the stalls in the fair grounds. Uniontown is under ten feet of water. The relief boat was anchored in the main street of the city, three blocks back from the river front.

From all points along the lower Ohio river come cries for relief from the terrible flood conditions. Prompt relief is needed at Grandview, Leavenworth, Rockport, Tell City, Cannelton, Mt. Vernon, Shawneetown and smaller towns. The appeals for aid are pitiful.

Guy B. Green, river forecaster at Mt. Vernon, made a plea for immediate government assistance. Mr. Green says calls are coming from a radius of ninety miles in which 30,000 people are calling for help. The river forecaster says all efforts at rescue have been confined to taking people from endangered homes and bringing them to Mt. Vernon. No attempts, he says, have been made to take food to the marooned farmers.

The forecaster estimates the number of people in actual want and danger in this section at between 8,000 and 30,000, and says, in addition, that 50,000 to 75,000 head of stock will perish unless measures are taken at once to save them. The citizens' relief committee of Mt. Vernon is working on the Indiana and Kentucky shores. It is on the Illinois side of the Wabash that the greatest amount of suffering is encountered.

Captain W. K. Naylor, United States army officer in charge of the relief work in this section of the river, has gone to Mt. Vernon and his attention will be directed to the rescue work.

READY FOR EMERGENCIES

Cairo Has Done What It Can to Ward Off Rising Water.

Cairo, Ill., April 5.—This city is preparing for the crucial period of the fight against the Ohio river flood with all possible measures to assure protection to the city and its inhabitants. The crest of the rise is expected to reach here by night, the water still slowly crawling up.

Many rafts have been constructed, together with rowboats, and placed in convenient sections of the city, ready for emergencies. The river is now three feet above the street levels, and there is in this fact a dreadful hint of what may happen should the levees break.

Dread Record in Ohio.

Washington, April 5.—Ohio's loss in the recent flood is estimated in a telegram from the American Red Cross agent in charge at Columbus as follows: 450 lives lost; 4,200 homes destroyed; 40,500 persons homeless; 9,000 families outside of Dayton, Columbus and Cincinnati in need of rehabilitation.

Shot on His Doorstep.

South Bend, Ind., April 5.—Daniel Resolich was shot, probably fatally, by a neighbor, Michael Madick, who called him to his door and fired without warning. Madick, in jail, makes no statement.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

On the train from Indianapolis this morning there were three corpses, enroute from California to Kentucky for burial.

The quarantine was lifted from the home of Marsh Ross this morning. Two of his children, Charles and Donald, have had scarlet fever.

Rev. E. B. Higham, a student at Butler College, was here today on his way to Crothersville where he will supply in the pulpit at the Christian church Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles James were called to Covington, Ky., Friday because of the death of the latter's mother. They had been informed that she was ill but did not know that her condition was serious.

Mrs. Frank Gillispie and sister, Mrs. Charles McGraw, left for Danville, Ills., today. Their sister, Mrs. Charles Linstrom, died Sunday, March 30, and they were unable to attend the funeral on account of the high water.

There are quite a number of cases of measles in the city, but none of them is serious. Physicians say this is a good time of the year for children to have this disease. Several cards have been removed during the past few days and the home fumigated under the direction of the city board of health.

PURE ADVERTISING BILL

Text of the Recent Law Passed by the Indiana Legislature.

Advertisers in this city will be interested in the following law known as the "pure advertising law."

"Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Indiana, That if any person, firm, association or corporation, or any employee thereof, in a newspaper, circular, form letter or other publication published, distributed or circulated in this state, or on any billboard, sign, card, label or other advertising medium displayed on, in or near a street, electric car, show case, store or other place in this state, knowingly makes or disseminates or causes to be made or disseminated any statement or assertion of fact concerning the quantity, the quality, the method of production, or manufacture, the cost of production, the cost to the advertiser, the present or former price, or the reason for the price of the merchandise of such person, firm, association or corporation, or concerning the manner or source of purchase of such merchandise, or the possession of rewards, prizes or distinctions conferred on account of such merchandise, which statement or assertion has the appearance of an offer advantageous to the purchaser and is untrue or calculated to mislead, the person or corporation, or the member or members of a firm or association, causing such statement or assertion to be made or disseminated, also the employee making or disseminating such statement or assertion, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable to a fine of not less than ten ($10) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500) for each offense."

All laws in conflict with this are repealed. The bill carries an emergency clause, and it is, therefore, in effect since the governor affixed his signature.

SOFTEN ORDER OF EXPULSION

Methodist Conference Lets Cissel Down Easy.

WITHDREW UNDER COMPLAINT

The Added Disgrace of Discharge Was Spared Unfrosted Minister When North Indiana M. E. Conference Accepted the Resignation of Preacher Charged With Immorality, Under Special Ruling of the Bishop.

Tipton, Ind., April 5.—In the session of the North Indiana conference it was a solemn moment when the Rev. M. S. Marble, superintendent of the Logansport district, brought up the question of the charges of immoral conduct made against the Rev. C. C. Cissell of Kokomo, former district superintendent, when he was attending the general conference held at Minneapolis last year. Superintendent Marble, with misty eyes and faltering lips, told of the minister's disgrace and there were weeping men and women in every part of the large church. Mr. Marble asked the bishop for an interpretation of the discipline on the effect of ministers being permitted to withdraw from the conference under complaint.

Bishop McDowell ruled that it would be the same as if he had been expelled, and on motion of Mr. Marble the conference accepted the resignation of Cissell from the ministry and the church "under complaint," which was a softening of the order of expulsion. Bishop McDowell prayed fervently for the disgraced minister and every member of the conference who expressed himself did so in deep regret and without animus. This was one of the most touching incidents of the entire conference and seemed to throw a shadow over its deliberations.

IN EFFORT TO SAVE HUSBAND

Mrs. Olson Tells Humiliating Story to Jury at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., April 5.—Mrs. Lillian Olson, wife of Prof. Olson of the University of Minnesota agricultural college, late yesterday afternoon in district court bravely started treading the samut of shame and mortification which she will endure in an effort to save her husband from prison for slaying Clyde Darling, driver of a laundry wagon and an admirer of the woman.

She told how in April, 1912, she first became intimate with Darling and continued the intimacy for a long time before informing her husband.

In a faltering, husky voice, Prof. Olson finished the details of the confession his wife made to him. The reason he had remained loyal to her in spite of her self-admitted unfaithfulness came out for the first time in this statement: "She told me this: 'Darling has a super-human influence over me. He takes me in his arms and holds me tight, he looks into my eyes and hypnotizes me. I cannot resist him.'"

DECLINES TO FACE CHARGES

Allen County School Superintendent Resigns Under Fire.

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 5.—Henry G. Felger, superintendent of the Allen county schools, has tendered his resignation to the county board of education, and will, therefore, not be called on to answer impeachment charges started against him. The action follows the report of the grand jury made a week or more ago after an investigation of the vice situation involving young girls and some well-known Fort Wayne men.

No indictment was returned against Felger, but the grand jury recommended that he be removed from office and impeachment charges brought against him. Felger says he is innocent of wrongdoing, and it was first announced that he would not resign, but would fight the charges. No explanation is offered for his change in plans.

Wives of Strikers Use Whips.

New Kensington, Pa., April 5.—The strike situation at the plant of the Aluminum Company of America, located here, assumed a serious aspect when the wives of the strikers took a hand in the rioting. Arming themselves with blacksnake whips, a large number of the women lay in wait for strikers who attempted to return to work. Several were unmercifully thrashed and many were beaten into unconsciousness.

To Prevent Further Floods.

Indianapolis, April 5.—The board of public works has adopted a resolution declaring its intention of improving White river from Thirty-eighth street to Southern avenue by straightening and changing its boundaries, by widening the channel where necessary, and building levees and roadways on both banks of the stream.

Violated the Webb Law.

Williamsburg, Ky., April 5.—The Adams Express company was fined $1,475 on nineteen charges of delivering liquor in local option territory contrary to the provisions of the Webb law.

Constipation and Catarrh

S. B. HARTMAN, M. D.

You are constipated. You have taken laxatives a great many years. You have tried to select a diet that would keep your bowels regular. In this you have failed and were obliged to go back to your laxatives again. This, I say, has been going on many years.

You also have a slight catarrh in the head and throat. You never imagined that the catarrh had anything to do with the constipation. Suppose I were to tell you that as long as you have that catarrh you will never get better of your constipation. Would you believe me? Well, whether you would believe me or not it is the truth.

For many years I have been wrestling with the problem of furnishing the public an internal catarrh remedy. Peruna has been the remedy that I have devised and it has certainly relieved many thousand people, yes hundreds of thousands of people, of chronic catarrh.

Constipation was my chief difficulty in treating these cases. I often felt that it would be better if a laxative element were added to Peruna. I feared to do so, however, first because of the number of catarrhal patients who needed no laxative, and second I was afraid of making such a radical change in a remedy that was already doing so well. Thus it was that I continued to prescribe with the Peruna a bottle of Manalin to those who needed a laxative. At last, under circumstances explained in my booklet, I was constrained to add the laxative element to Peruna. This constitutes what is now known as the revised Peruna.

Now those who take Peruna will, first, find themselves promptly relieved of their constipation. Second, the catarrh will gradually disappear. And once the catarrh is cured the constipation leaves permanently. Then if you follow the advice given in my book, you will never have to take pills any more. Cathartics and laxatives you can ignore. You will be permanently relieved of both your catarrh and the constipation. PERUNA IS FOR SALE AT ALL DRUG STORES.

SPECIAL NOTICE—Many persons are making inquiries for the old-time Peruna. To such would say, this formula is now put out under the name of KA-TAR-NO, manufactured by KA-TAR-NO Company, Columbus, Ohio. Write them and they will be pleased to send you a free booklet.

Hairbreadth Harry—Appalling Happenings Freeze Us With Terror

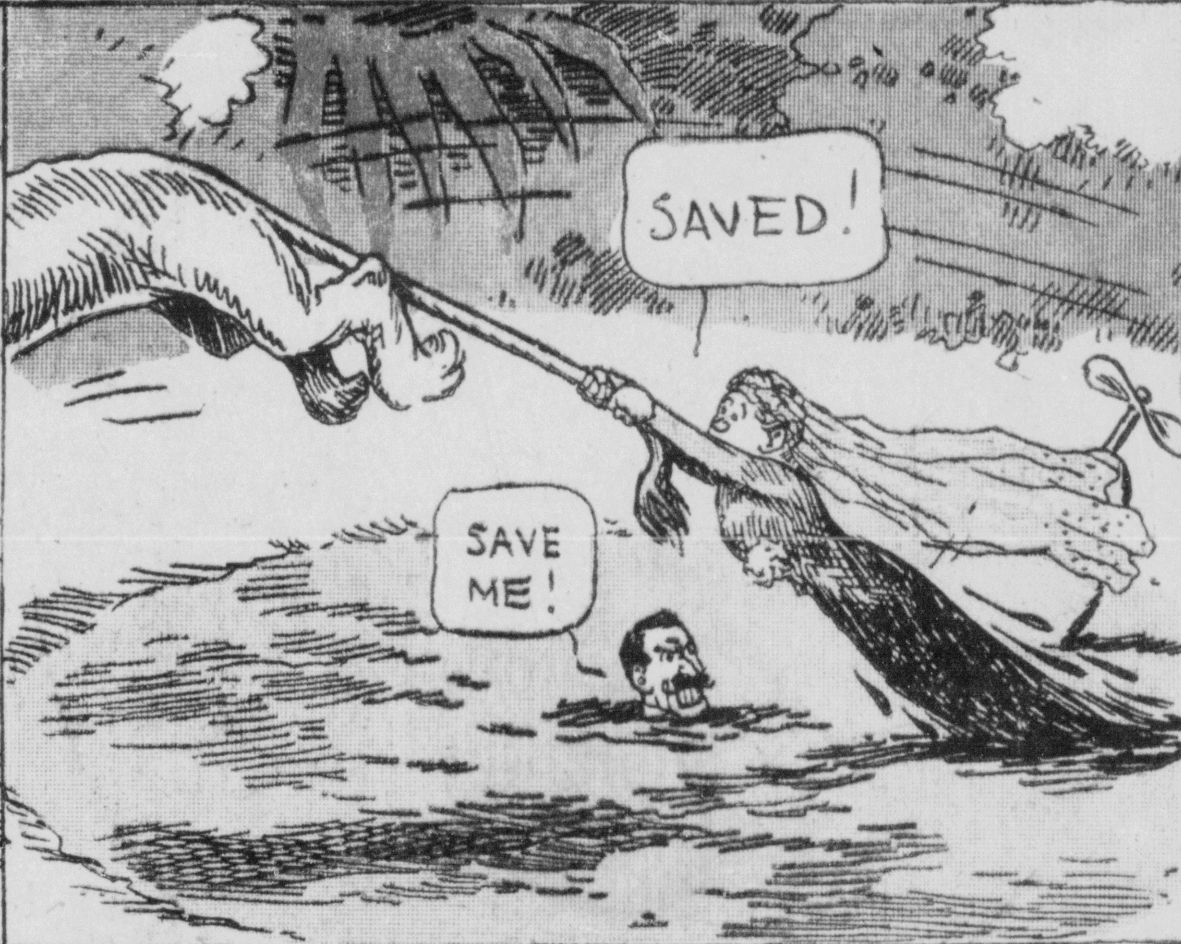

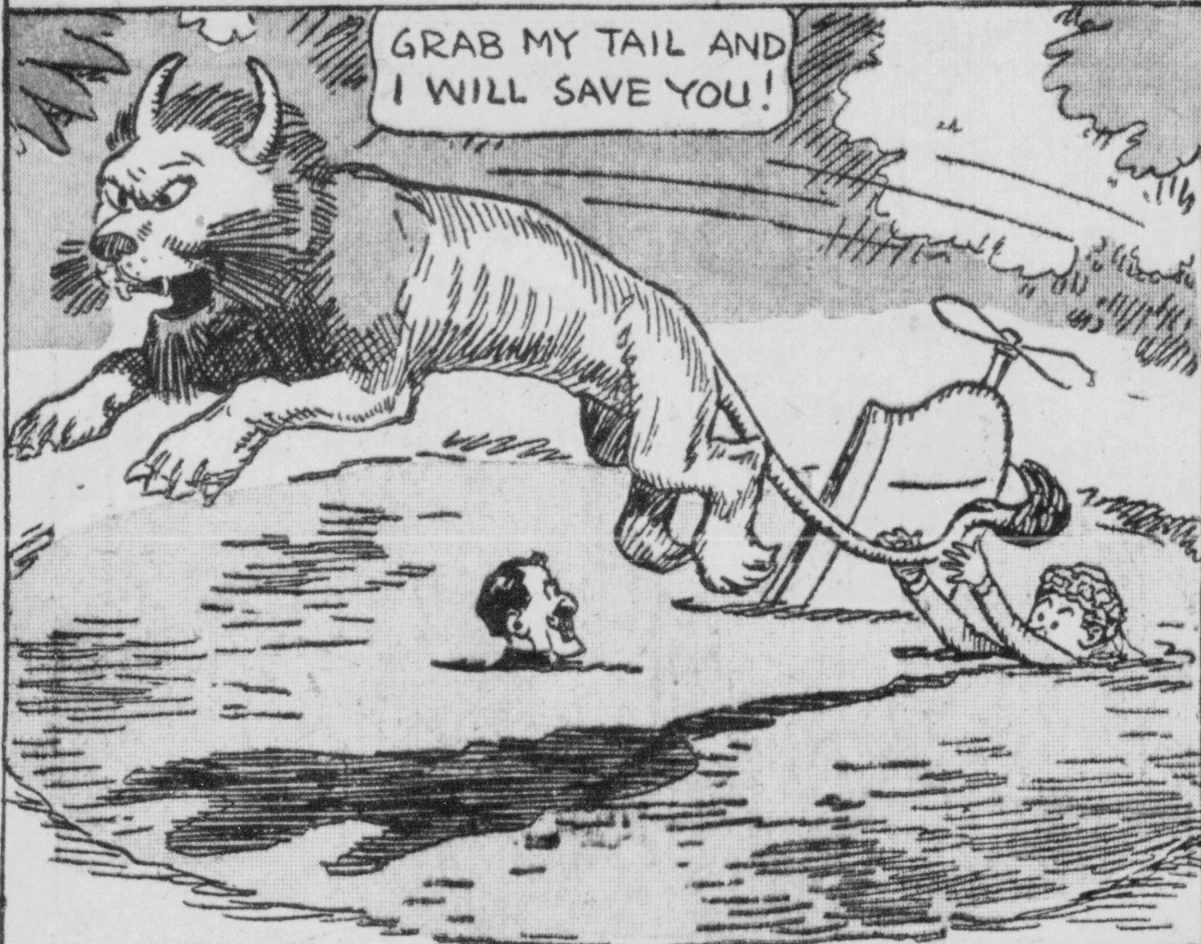

THE OUTRAGED FEELINGS OF THE BEAUTIFUL BELINDA AT BEING SNATCHED FROM HER LOVER'S SIDE AT THE VERY ALTAR CAN BETTER BE IMAGINED THAN DESCRIBED.

OH GOSH! THE ENGINE HAS BALKED AND THEY ARE DASHING TO THEIR DOOM!!!

BUT FORTUNATELY THEY LANDED IN A SWAMP OF SOFT MUD WHICH SAVED THEM FROM BEING CRUSHED INSTANTLY TO DEATH! BUT TO EXTRICATE THEMSELVES WAS IMPOSSIBLE

WORSE AND WORSE! AS THEY WERE SINKING FROM VIEW INTO THE QUICKSAND BOG A TERRIBLE SLANT-EYED LEO APPEARED

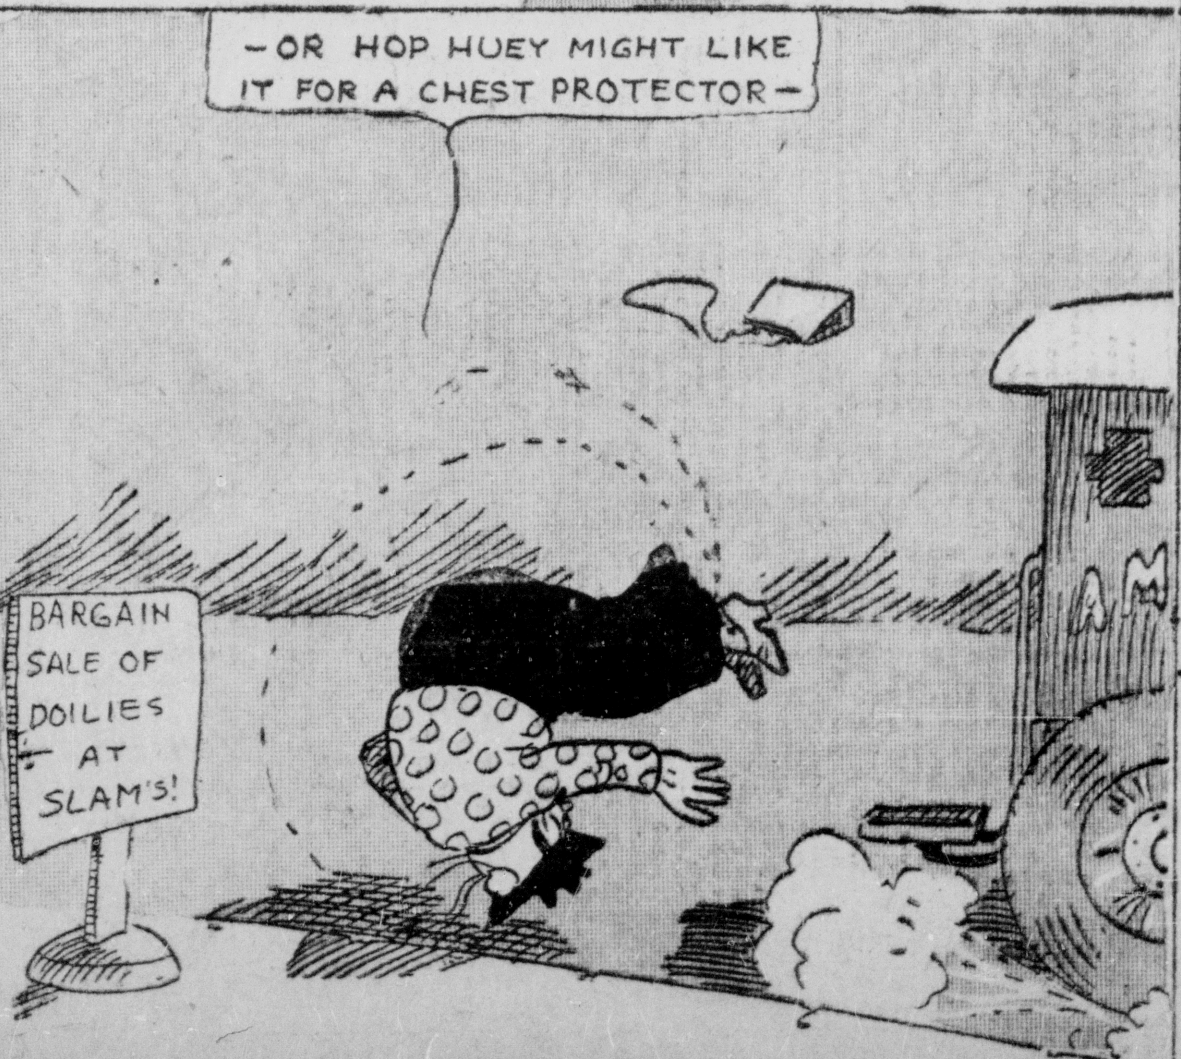

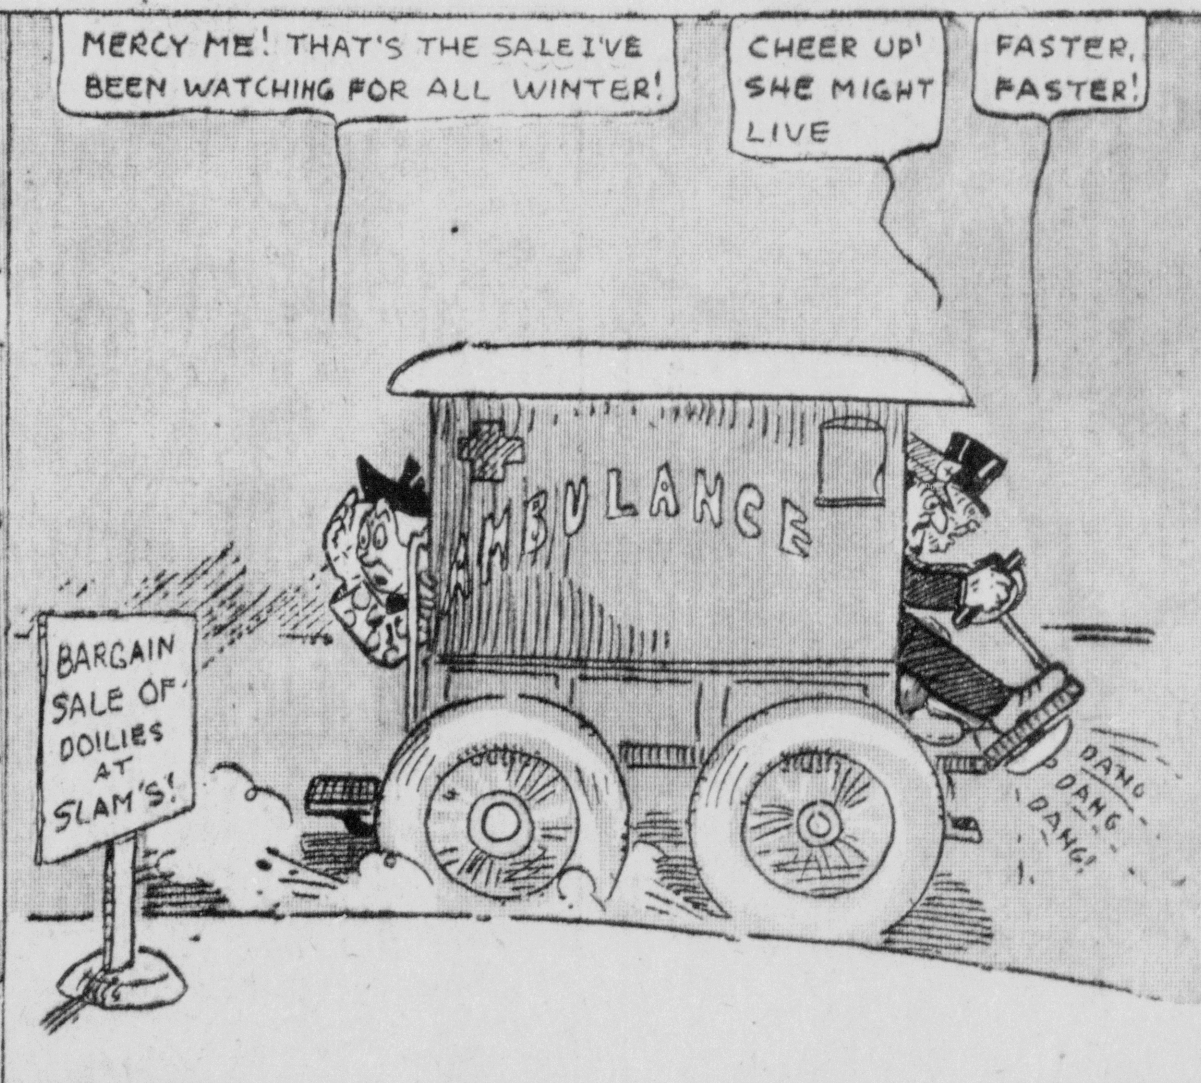

SUDDENLY THE FIERCE LEO MADE A WILD SPRING, BOUNDING HIGH OVER OUR YOUNG HEROINE'S HEAD! WITH A SLIGHT SPASM OF RENEWED HOPE THE BEAUTIFUL BELINDA CLUTCHED ITS SWISHING TAIL.

THE NEXT INSTANT SHE FELT HERSELF VIOLENTLY YANKED FROM HER LIVING TOMB!!

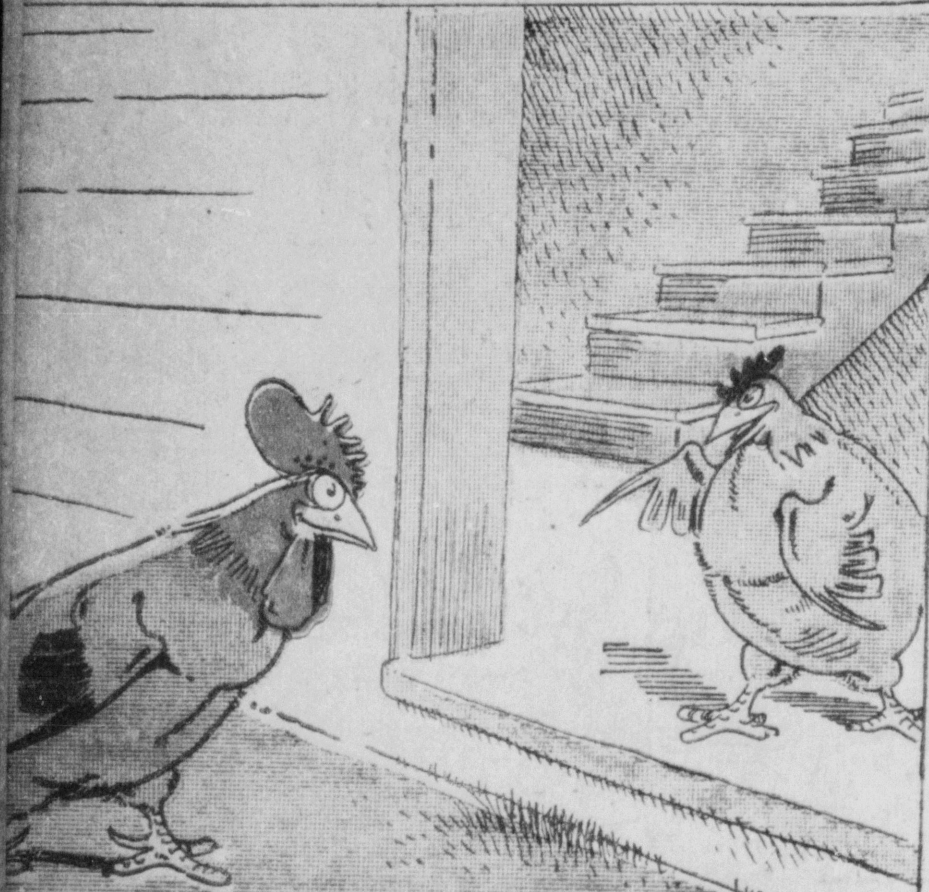

OH BASE HYPOCRISY AND CUNNING DUPLICITY! THAT D MEREY SAVED BELINDA SO HE COULD HAVE HER FOR AND THAT WICKED RUDOLPH MOCKS HER WITH HIS LA

PAKE

Before beginning cut out the large circle and then with a sharp knife cut out the smaller circle on a dotted line. Paste the large circle on cardboard and then place the small one inside of it as before. The game is now ready to play and the player having first go thumps the flap. Each player takes a number and the one that stops opposite the judge's stand wins the first. As many as 8 persons may play.

ANNA BELLE PLAYS GAMES ON SHIPBOARD

Dear Friends—Well, we're still on shipboard and really I'm enjoying every minute of the voyage. Uncle Ezra thinks it is remarkable that I haven't been seasick at all. We had an egg race on the Promenade deck yesterday and it was lots of fun. I managed to get through without breaking mine, but lost the race after all. The little girl whose outfit I'm showing you won and although she is very small, I wish you could see her run. I am also showing you the second kodak picture. It is a buoy, and as you can see has a large bell on it, which rings and warns the captain of the ship that a dangerous rock is near. The waves were rolling high when I took this picture and I'm glad it turned out good anyway. We are now expecting to land real soon but are planning a play to be given before we do. I will show you this next week and I hope you will like it and the costumes we wear. Dear old Uncle Ezra is so good to me and I don't see how I can ever repay him for taking me on this nice trip. I think of each of you every day and hope that you keeping up THE SEWING SOCIETY work just as you were when I was at home. The winter is over now and we must ever be on the lookout for the poor, even on these bright Spring days. I get very encouraging letters from Marjorie, saying that our SEWING SOCIETY is just doing fine and I'm glad that she is making us such a good President during my absence. Please don't forget your letters to me, friends, for I enjoy them more than anything. Address me care of this paper and they will see that I get your letter. Lovingly
